

Tunbridge Wells Cultural & Learning Hub

Stakeholder Update – 6th December 2016

Latest news:

The Design Team have begun working with staff and the public, this is an important period where the architect and interpretation designer will gather data and develop a full understanding of the project and the service requirements.

Consultation:

The Artists in Residence, David Clarke and Tracey Rowledge, have begun hosting a series of renaming workshops to begin to identify potential names for the new Cultural & Learning Hub.

If you have any ideas for a name for the future Hub, please send them to:
museum@tunbridgewells.gov.uk

A questionnaire is available to download from the website:

www.tunbridgewellsmuseum.org/cultural-hub and hard copies available in the Museum, Library, Gateway and Adult Education Centre in Tunbridge Wells.

More consultation is being planned for the New Year, with details being made available on the website soon.

Museum Memories:

There is a new interactive display in the Museum for sharing your memories of your visit, whether that be a favourite piece in the collection, an exhibition or time spent with family or friends, we would love to hear about your memories.

The memories collected will form part of an archive about the heritage of the museum specifically for our Heritage Lottery Fund application.

Thank you for your continued support. If you have any questions about this update please email:
